DARING AVIATRIX DIES AS AIRPLANE CRASHES TO EARTH

Laura Bromwell Is Killed In 1,000 Foot Tumble

New York, June 6.—Loose safety straps, which allowed the wearer to slip from her seat, were today held responsible for the death of Miss Laura Bromwell, America's foremost woman flyer, who was instantly killed while looping the loop in a single seat Canadian airplane at Mineola, Sunday.

Mineola, N. Y., June 6.—Miss Laura Bromwell, holder of the loop-the-loop record for women and one of the best known women pilots in the world was killed at Mitchell Field yesterday afternoon.

Miss Bromwell was flying at an altitude of about 1000 feet when the accident happened. She had just completed one loop and was about to make a second when something went wrong with the plane and it crashed to the ground.

Miss Bromwell, whose home was in Cincinnati, as 23 years old.

She established her loop-the-loop record on May 15, last, when she executed 199 loops in an hour and 20 minutes. That same afternoon she piloted her airplane over a two-mile straightaway course at the rate of 135 miles an hour.

Military observers who witnessed the flight declared that the girl's airplane motor stopped abruptly as she was making the upward turn of the loop. Suddenly the machine fell backward into a tail spin and dropped like a plummet onto a road just outside the field.

REPORT FAVORABLY ON PACKING BILL

Washington, June 4.—The senate agriculture committee today voted to report favorably the senate packing control bill as a substitute for the bill passed by the house this week regulating the packing industry. The senate bill would place control of the packing industry under a livestock commissioner, while the house bill would place the control in the hands of the secretary of agriculture. Opposition to the senate bill from house members may tie up the packer legislation indefinitely when it reaches the conference stage.

Eye Witness Describes Scene of Flood In Colorado As Death Dealing Styx

Well Known Capitalist Of Colorado Springs Paints Vivid Picture Of Terrible Scenes In Stricken District—Ruin and Death On Every Side Turns Active Community Into Place Of Desolation—Heart Rending Scenes Related.

The following exclusive story was written for the International News Service by Mr. W. W. Peters, widely known capitalist of Colorado Springs, who made his way up from Pueblo, in an auto over the treacherous railroad beds from which many miles of track had been wiped out. The 44-mile journey required eight hours. It was on the strength of information brought by Mr. Price that local citizens organized committees for emergency relief for the stricken city and a gang of 250 men was sent out to start restoring the roads.

By W. W. PRICE, (Copyright 1921 by I. N. S.) Colorado Springs, Colo., June 6.—A vertiginous swiping, sucking, styx bearing in its yellow muck, houses, cattle, horses, trees and timber, smashing everything in its path and here and there, limp bodies whirling with the current, to appear for a moment and then swoop down, going through a window of a house to be again sucked out, on their silent journey of death, down into the mud of the roaring Arkansas river on the worst rampage of its turbulent career.

Such were the scenes that I witnessed in Pueblo, from late Friday night until my escape from the turmoil.

In all my wildest dreams, I have never imagined such an experience possible. Silent, yet swishing—for ever swishing—waters holding in their grip a city of 50,000 souls and under the eerie light of a score of fires in all parts of the flooded areas, men moved like ghosts during the black night when Pueblo walked in the Valley in the shadow.

Perhaps the most pitiable scene was at the Colorado asylum for the insane, situated in the flooded area, surrounded by the waters, and filled with menace. When the waters began to get to the grounds, the insane, who had been at the windows became frantic, despite the efforts of nurses and men attendants to take them back. Screams filled the air and many beat themselves into insensibility in an effort to escape from their bars. But all were removed safely to the second and third floors of the hospital. Marooned by the waters and with their supplies of food destroyed, drinking only of the muddy waters, they were in a pitiable plight, until supplies were brought to them in row boats.

Water, water everywhere but not a drop to drink. A terrible situation. Disease lurks in the yellow mud that floats in the streams. The city's water works was early out of commission and will be for many days.

When the warning sirens tolled Friday night, I, like many others curiously went toward the river front, not expecting a rapid rise. I left my motor car and was walking and then I saw men running toward me for their lives. The water was soon lapping at their heels, and I turned and fled to my car, a block away. So fast did the water come, that no sooner did I get my car out from the curb than the waters were on me and stepping on the throttle with all the power I had, I sped up the street, but then the waters lapped under my running boards. But I reached safety.

Then came the fires, when timbers, lighted in the King lumber yards blaze went darting here and there, carrying their flames. Many were extinguished, but flood carried hundreds into stores and homes and a score of fires broke out at once.

Firemen stood on higher ground, helplessly watching the blazes. The ruin to business was total in the downtown area, except in some few cases where goods were on floors above the second story.

Practically all the entire business section of the city was inundated the river returning to its old channel, that in 1870 took it through the heart of the town. You cannot teach an old

HARDING DECLARES CIVILIZATION NOW ENDANGERED BY ACTS

President Gives Talk At Valley Forge On Sunday.

Valley Forge, Pa., June 6.—A sermon of faith in established American institutions and of hope for a day of peace and good will throughout the world, was preached by President Harding Sunday from a woodland pulpit overlooking General Washington's historic camping ground in Valley Forge.

Civilization, declared the president, has been beset by "vandals." This nation, he added, could discharge its responsibilities to humanity only if it preserved securely its independence of action and the traditions inherited from the fathers.

"An America dedicated to its standards at Valley Forge," says Mr. Harding, "will hold fast and suffer, if need be, until our inherited institutions are justified and guaranteed anew. When I pledge America to world helpfulness, at the same time I exact a pledge that America will cling to her own independence of action and to her own conscience."

The president's address was delivered from the cloister of the Washington memorial chapel to a crowd of several thousand persons assembled under the auspices of the Valley Forge Historical Society. Just before the address he had attended service within the chapel itself, to which he and Mrs. Harding motored from the country home here of Senator Philander C. Knox, with whom they are spending the week end.

The exact cause of the accident will never be known, according to railroad men. O'Connor, it is said, had climbed on top of his train at Spring Valley, and it is believed that possibly in jumping from the top of one car to another, that he slipped and fell between the cars being crushed to death. His right arm was torn off at the shoulder socket, his right leg cut off at the knee, his left leg dislocated at the knee cap, two bad gashes were cut in his head and he was otherwise cut and bruised.

The body was picked up by the railroad men, and brought to this city, where it was turned over to J. H. Whitmer, undertaker and taken to his morgue. Mrs. O'Connor, was notified at her home in Columbus. There are no children.

O'Connor, had been employed by the Pennsylvania railroad, for about 25 years, it is said, by friends who knew him. Because of his long term of service, he was well known to railroad men, from Columbus to Cincinnati, and had many friends here. The body will be taken to Columbus for burial.

Ray Whitaker, of Cincinnati, was engineer on the fatal train.

Falling from the top of his own freight train to the rails below, where he was terribly mangled, Timothy O'Connor, 56, Columbus, veteran Pennsylvania railroad man, was instantly killed at six o'clock Monday morning, at a point about two miles south of Xenia.

The accident was discovered after east bound freight train, first No. 480, of which O'Connor was freight conductor, had pulled into the depot here from Cincinnati, and it was discovered the conductor was missing.

DEATH LIST IN AREA MAY REACH HIGH AS 1,500

More Than 2,000 Families Are Homeless Following Great Flood.

FEAR EPIDEMICS

Cloudburst Adds To Peril Sunday—Two Dams Collapse

Pueblo, Colo., June 6.—(6 a. m.)—Floods that have swept Pueblo since Friday night were receding at this hour and it is not believed the city is in danger of further inundation. Eighty-eight bodies are in the morgue here, according to relief officials.

City officials, however, estimate that the loss of life will reach as high as 1,000 or 1,500.

Only a few of the bodies have been identified. In addition to the heavy toll in Pueblo, officials of the city estimate that the deluge left many victims in its progress to the south, after engulfing Pueblo.

More than 2,000 families are homeless and citizens are working with the Red Cross and other relief agencies at relief work. Early today water was standing nine feet deep at the Union Station and this made the work of exploring two submerged passenger trains difficult.

A new peril that of disease, menaced the city today. Cases of typhoid, pneumonia and diphtheria have appeared and health authorities are taking every possible precaution against serious epidemics.

Property loss today still was estimated at approximately $10,000,000.

A cloudburst and the collapse of two dams that impounded huge reservoirs of water, added to the peril of the district yesterday and last night.

Explorers started searching the submerged passenger trains Sunday afternoon and had taken out three bodies when they were forced to quit by the cloud burst which descended on the city.

Both trains, one on the Denver and Rio Grande and the other on the Missouri Pacific, were said to have been filled with passengers when they were caught in the waters. Only a few persons are known to have escaped.

Reports received from Swallow, Colo., early today, said that a third wall of water, which was declared to be rushing toward Pueblo had receded. There is every evidence to indicate that the flood has spent its force and that the waters are receding over the entire state.

As the floods leave Colorado, however, they are spreading out over the states west and southwest. Heavy toll is believed to have been taken along the course of the Arkansas between Pueblo and La Junta. Persons entering Pueblo from the south, report having seen scores of bodies floating in the swollen streams, buffeted and battered by driftwood and debris. Horses, cattle hogs and other animals by the hundreds were reported in the rushing waters.

From Las Animas, county seat of Dent county near the New Mexican line, came the report that two hundred residences are under three feet of water as a result of the flood that reached that locality late Saturday night.

The homes of an entire colony of Mexican workers in the beet fields have been washed away with a known loss of four lives, reports said. Chaos was reported reigning in the town.

Relief work in stricken Pueblo is now well organized and the suffering which immediately followed the Friday night deluge has been considerably lessened. Strict martial law is still the order, with no persons permitted on the streets of the city without a permit before 7 a. m. or after 7 p. m.

The looting which characterized the early stages of the disaster has been checked.

Three of the city's largest banks are preparing to resume business at the usual hour this morning, in their own quarters. Other financial institutions whose buildings are wrecked are arranging to conduct business in temporary quarters.

Reports that gained wide circulation throughout the city late last night, that a great wall of water was rushing down upon the city from Swallow Creek, 15 miles west, proved to be untrue as the swollen streams have gradually receded since midnight.

North Main and Union streets are a mass of debris and it is impossible for rescue workers to make their way through this section, but south Main and Santa Fe streets, in the business section, are passable.

The military forces are in complete control and searching parties are being formed to discover the scores of bodies that are scattered in every fashion over the devastated area.

RATES ARE RAISED BY OHIO ELECTRIC

Springfield, June 6.—Springfield officials of the Ohio Electric Railway company stated Thursday afternoon regarding the new rate schedule effective covering passenger rates that the rate from Springfield to Columbus, will be $1.25 instead of $1. This it was pointed out is still less than the rate on the steam road.

There is no change in the rate between Springfield and Dayton. No change is made in the price to London, as there is a special franchise covering London.

GOLF AND HOW TO PLAY IT

By Chas. Chick Evans Jr.

Iron Play.

After all is said and done, it is iron play that separates the golf sheep from the goats, and it is in that part of the game that the professional in almost every instance shows his superiority to the amateur. The professional game, and that of the best amateur's has a standard quality, a general average of skill.

To be able to judge distance and to drop the ball within a reasonable radius is evidence of a great advance, and, I would add, it also shows that a large amount of practice has gone to the creating of ability.

A terrific wind was blowing this morning, but I was glad to get in my usual practice. From the golfer's standpoint this was a day of progress. The clubhead swing was just what I needed, and I think the result, and steady flight will mean a great deal to that shot.

The idea of the arms working independently of the body is a great thing too, and brought priceless results. I recall that it was one of my chief thoughts while playing against Vardon and Ray some years ago and on that occasion my game rose to its height. The throw of the clubhead is another one of the rules that proved golden that day. I hope these ideas will serve me as well in Britain where I shall be when this is published, making my bid, with a group of other golfers from this side of the Atlantic, for the British title.

In today's practice I remembered particularly to hit that four-inch space down there. I kept my eyes down and did not snap that follow through too quickly.

These extracts from my diary are a summing up in a cursory manner of the results, favorable in this instance, of a day's practice. Slight as they are themselves, they convey more clearly than chapters of technical instruction what a golfer must try to do. One good rule well translated into action is worth all the hours of practice its acquisition demands, and I know of no rules more useful than these.

Swinging the arms independently of the body means the weight of the body must not be thrown into the shot too soon.

Questions and Answers.

I have a wager with a friend that I will make our course in 85 or less this, my first season. To improve my game, I have been taking some of my shots over. My friend insists that I should not do this as it delays other people. What is your view?

Answer—Your partner is right. You should not delay the game of other players coming behind you merely because you want to improve your own game. The rights of others must always be respected particularly on the golf course. Moreover, your habit probably makes your partner uncomfortable too. By all means get the necessary practice, but why don't you adopt the solitary practice I described in previous articles?

Use Your Own Judgment.

I have been reading your articles with great interest. This is my first year of golf. I should like your opinion as to whether I should follow the advice of my caddy when in my own mind I am sure he is wrong.

Answer—Follow your own judgment even if the caddy were wrong. If you felt otherwise, but followed the caddy's advice, you would play the shot with a lack of confidence that would probably spoil it. In a case like this make a mental note of the circumstances and talk it over with some expert afterward. That is the way to progress in golf.

THE WORLD STILL BELIEVES MAN IS A FIGHTING ANIMAL AND IN THE SURVIVAL OF THE FITTEST.

The poor old civilized world has lost faith in itself. Prior to 1914 it had considered itself too respectable, too intelligent and too humane to permit any more wars. Then came the biggest, most fiendish and most devastating war of history. The result—in addition to immediate terrible losses in human life, in property, in economic order—has been an apparent general abandonment of the hope that war can really be prevented.

The disillusioned world used to believe that the very cruelty and power of modern methods of warfare would restrain any nation in its right senses from going to war. They did nothing of the sort. Furthermore, the world believes once more that man is a fighting animal, that conflict is the law of life and that the survival of the fittest is a fundamental item of evolution. On, then, with the frenzied preparations for the "next war."

It is time the world pinched itself and woke up. One writer reminds the world that "at best, whatever moral force was loosed by the great war did not survive the armistice. It became no part of the moral heritage of mankind." The war-worshipping nations need to be reminded, too, that modern warfare is not fighting at all, but wholesale murder, and that about 10,000,000 of civilization's "fittest" did not survive the last war.

Common sense, if there is any left, should point the way back to the belief that war is not necessary and that it can be prevented. This time the belief should not be blind and fatuous, as it was before. It should be a positive faith, based on constructive action, on disarmament, on international co-operation and good will.

CHILDREN AND BOOZE.

A humane society in one of the larger cities has just issued a report telling of the 4,550 children dealt with by it in the year 1920. These children were from 1,854 homes. It gives ten principal causes for bringing these children to the society for care. Alcohol is not among the ten. The report says:

"Intemperance, which in the 'pre-prohibition days' was the most common cause of complaint, has become, despite the much-talked-of 'raisin-jack' and 'home brew,' seldom given as the reason for asking our assistance. Some children whose homes had broken a number of years ago because of intemperance have been returned to their parents, who have re-established their homes and proven their fitness to have them. One family of five children who became wards of the society because of the intemperance of their parents, this year spent their first Christmas in five years in their own homes."

Prohibition, of course, does not yet prohibit enough. Much is to be done in the way of enforcement and the development of public opinion. But such facts as these shine out like a harbor light over a stormy sea. They point the way to safe harbor—and, moreover, they prove that a great part of the journey has been safely accomplished.

WE VALUE WHAT WE HAVE BY THE WORK WE DID TO GET IT.

We do not value properly what comes too easily. Radium would not be worth a hundred thousand dollars a gram—about fifty million dollars a pound—if we could obtain it without a lot of work. When the Iron Cross was hard to win every German soldier wanted it. As soon as the Kaiser began flinging it about by the carload through his armies it became nothing but a joke. Boy Scouts value their distinctions, track athletes, golfers and tennis players value the cups and the medals they win in proportion to the effort put into the winning. What everybody can get as a matter of course nobody values.

The real measure of the cost of any commodity is not the price affixed to it, it is the amount of labor we must perform to obtain that price. When you and I buy an article in a store we are paying for that article not with the dollars, but with the work we did to earn the dollars. When we go for a holiday the cost of that holiday to us is the expenditure of our bodily energy in the previous toil of the working days that entitled us to the respite.

Children value their playthings the more when they have earned them. The father says to his son: "I will give you that chest of carpenter's tools you want if you will take care of the furnace or cut the grass." The mother agrees to give daughter the pretty dress she desires, or the jewelry, in return for faithful service in the household. If the children could have the desire gratified merely as a result of the asking, they would care comparatively little. You will see a poor child pleased by a few toys from the nursery of the spoiled and pampered infant of wealth, filled with every conceivable means of amusement, resounds with the wailing of his discontent. He has so much all at once, and without asking, that he is merely bored with everything.

Quite a few of my readers tell me that they have no opportunity to relax that they are, to quote one of the women, "busy from morning till night." This is particularly true, unfortunately, of the housewife and mother. There are always duties to be performed and somehow never anyone else to do them. The business girl has, at least the advantage of definite hours of work.

I wonder how many women have tried to relax while they are working? It cannot be done with every kind of work, of course, but there are many duties which can be performed while in a relaxed and restful position. In fact if one's household duties, are re-arranged it is often possible to make a change of work provide a little needed rest.

For instance, if there is a great deal of standing work and a great deal of sitting work, the two can be combined so that you neither stand nor sit long enough to become tired with that position. It is not possible to do more than make generalities of these suggestions in so short a space, but any housewife can work out her own schedule of duties so that her work is less tiresome.

There is one thing which I think important enough to mention. Most women take some part of the day off to read, but few of them relax while they are reading. This I know from observation. When you read, lie back as far as possible so your spine is supported and your whole body relaxed and at rest. To read in such a position is sometimes more refreshing than to lie back like this with the eyes closed. The housewife needs mental refreshment as well as physical rest.

GOOD BUYERS ON GOOD-BYERS

Two Kinds

Shoppers Seek

The Family Purse

Needs No Sage

AN EDITORIAL ON BUYING

There are two kinds of people in the world—the ones who act first and think afterwards, and those who think first and act accordingly.

It does not need a sage to tell you which of them gets the best and most out of life.

These two classes of people constitute also the two kinds of buyers—the ones who spend their money first and then count their purchases and those who first count their needs and then buy to make their money cover them. Again, it is needless to say which class reaps the greatest satisfaction from the money it spends.

To the latter class belongs those who read advertising.

There is no aid to spending money economically comparable to looking carefully through the columns of the newspaper for buying ideas; not only where price is concerned, but as to what finds favor in style and quality.

The really wise buyer knows that that price alone is not the chief consideration. The things which fashion decrees are good to wear the quality of texture of the fabric used, are as essential to satisfaction in shopping as is the cost.

So good shoppers seek first to find out where these three things can be obtained in the right proportion. And they find it in the advertising columns.

Let's take a little glimpse back to the WHY of advertising.

Advertising not only gives valuable style and price information, it is the means by which both good style and fair prices are created.

No particular style prevails until it is seen and accepted by the people for whom it was created. It must be brought to the attention of a sufficient number of persons to whom it appeals before it can become popular, and the medium for thus creating style is advertising.

In the matter of prices there are two determining factors; production cost and merchandising cost. What ever may be the fluctuation of the former, the merchandising cost is lowered by the wise use of advertising space. Advertising creates sales enable a merchant to turn his stock of ten; through quick stock turns he can afford to take less profit and the result is lower prices. This is most strongly emphasized by the fact that advertised articles were the last to advance in price, and the first to be reduced.

Every buyer, therefore, is the beneficiary of advertising. How much he benefits depends upon how carefully and how constantly he follows advertising offerings.

Merchants and Manufacturers are announcing every day interesting sales in which price reductions are evident. The full significance of them can best be appreciated by comparison with those prices which war conditions produced.

But whether or not comparison is made, the fact itself will be sustained by the outcome of a shopping expedition directed by the contents of the advertising columns.

To neglect to read the advertising announcements from day to day is to overlook important buying opportunities. To read the store news is to buy better values, save more money, and have a larger number of comforts and luxuries for both yourself and your family.

Belong, therefore not to the class that spend at random until they have said good-bye to their last dollar with out reaching the end of their buying list. Belong rather to that wise body of people who first make a note of their needs and then consult the advertising columns to find how those needs can be most satisfactorily covered by the family purse.

GOOD HONEY YEAR INDICATIONS SHOW

Wilmington, June 6.—The present season an extraordinary good one for the bee industry, but the record breaking amount of aliske clover which resembles the white clover and is said to be almost equally good as a honey producer, has added to the favorable conditions for the industry.

More and more attention is being given to bee keeping in Clinton county, and the annual yield reaches into the thousands of pounds of choice honey.

Styles BY LENORE

There may be room for argument when one calls this charming suit a sport costume, but there can be no two sides when it comes to settling its claim to smartness. Made of white gloveskin with trimmings of blue soutache and a pleated skirt of blue Canton crepe, it is the type of semi-tailored suit frequently seen at the more fashionable seashore resort, and so charmingly appropriate for week-ending or motoring out to dine at country club or swaggar inn.

Brilliant shades of red, green and blue figure prominently in sports attire, combined with white or black coats of duvetyne or lightweight velour. One of the most interesting models I have ever seen was made of wide alternating panels of red and white Canton crepe, while the black coat featured a high rolling collar faced with red and lined at the throat with two red buttons. While one plans from choice or necessity to combine style with economy, the dark cloth sport coat is assuredly a more practical investment, for with a harmonizing plaid or striped skirt it provides a good fall knock-about.

PATTERN NO. 179

A pattern for the above model (No. 179) can be obtained in sizes 34, 36, 38 or 40, by sending to LENORE, 8 West 40th St., NEW YORK City, your name and address the number of this pattern and size required, and 30 cents in postage stamps. Be sure to keep this newspaper clipping of the sketch and description of the garment to use as a working model when the pattern reaches you—which will be within two weeks.—THE EDITOR.

Practical Business Talks

IMPORTANCE OF GOOD LETTERS.

The Chinese have a proverb which says: "Without going out of doors one may know the whole world."

To paraphrase this saying a little we reach an important business fact: "Without going out of doors one may do business with the whole world."

In other words, selling by mail in many cases takes the place of personal salesmanship. Most business houses, no matter what their mode of selling, write letters on one occasion or another, to their customers.

It ought to be evident that the same spirit of personal friendliness which pervades personal selling ought to flavor all the firm's correspondence.

L. C. Wilsey, of the General Motors Export Company, says: "There are many kinds of business correspondence which leave an office every day—sales letters, collection letters, credit letters, adjustment letters, answers to requests for favors, acknowledgment of orders, cancellations of orders, and letters attending to a score of other matters which beset a successful business."

A business correspondent, he says, must keep in mind constantly the great importance of his letters. In other words he should make every letter a sales letter. Letters should carry no meaning which might prevent a sale at some future time.

Politeness is not cordiality. Courtesy is not necessarily friendliness.

Business letters should have a real friendly, human atmosphere if they are to get best results.

All of which brings out the fact that the men in your business who write letters to customers should be carefully trained to write good letters.

KEEP YOUR WORD.

You'll be rated as a bird, in the busy haunts of trade, if you always keep your word, never let a promise fade. If you promise you will pay for your wagonload of lime on the twenty-ninth of May, do your paying right on time. Then the smiling merchant prince will remark, with beaming eye, "It is many ages since I have seen so prompt a guy." And the merchant prince will say to the other princes near, "There is no more honest jay from Dan-sheba clear to Beer." If you promise you will meet James Adolphus Arthur Mix on the corner of the street at ten minutes after six, do not make Adolphus wait for the fraction of an hour, or he'll think you are a skate, and his spirit will be sour. And upon a future day, when you need him in your biz, and approach him, he will say, "Moly Hoses and Gee Whiz! Once I had a date with you, and you kept it—in a horn; so I naturally view you and all your works with scorn." One has great renown for wit, one can wrestle like a Gotch, and another makes a hit when he warbles "Larboard Watch;" one can write a classy ode, one can rear up and orate, one can scorch along the road at a Barney Oldfield gait. There are many kinds of fame, and some samples are absurd; but we all admire the game of the man who keeps his word. He is loaded to the guards with the laurel wreaths he's won, when the statesmen and the bards retail at ten cents a ton.

Health Talks

GLANDULAR THERAPY

For I am sick and cap able of fears.—Shakespeare.

"My little chap is six years old and highly nervous and excitable; easily irritated and just as easily made to laugh. He was always of a sunny splendid disposition. Lately, I find him dreamy-looking. He is forming habits such as biting his nails, always shrugging one shoulder and stretching his neck, back or front; and he seems to want to overcome the habit and says he forgets. I do not want to punish him if persuasion is the best. Kindly let me know the cause of this and what treatment should be given him. One year ago he had scarlet fever."

Answer—Much has been learned in recent years concerning the glandular system of the body, particularly the gland of internal secretion. It is now known that these glands control, in a measure, the physical and mental growth and development of the body and its health. They should work in harmony. If they do not then abnormal conditions prevail. In the case of your little lad there is a dysfunction. When one of these glands is either under or over active, all the others are affected. It is not always possible to determine which gland is principally affected.

The use of glandular extracts as medicines is increasing. It is called "Glandular therapy." This line of treatment must be considered experimental, and should supplement, not supplant, other treatment. Probably this boy has an insufficiency of some glands.

There is probably also an insufficiency of minerals in his system. If so, medication based on the glandular theory should be given him. This can only be done by the family physician and you are on no account to attempt to apply it yourself. There is no doubt the great number received. So if a per that the scarlet fever a year ago hassonal or quicker reply is desired, a predisposed the boy's system to the unhealthful conditions you describe.

Stomach Trouble.

Have stomach trouble and diarrhoea. Doctors tell me that there is no gastric juice in my stomach. Have catarrh and pain in my throat. There is no sign of tonsils in my throat. Is there such a thing as buried tonsils? And if so could they be causing my ailments?

Answer—It is not likely that small or absent tonsils affect your health. Full information on stomach trouble will be mailed on request accompanied by a stamped self-addressed envelope.

Unduly Nervous.

I know I haven't much longer to live. I am a young girl 19 years old. Several years ago I noticed a fluid in my abdomen just about a sixteenth of a teaspoonful. Will you tell me the cause of it? I also think I have tuberculosis. I don't like to die, but I may as well know if I have to.

Answer—You are letting your imagination run riot. Calm your fears and try to forget the fluid symptom. You do not say why you fear tuberculosis, or give any symptoms. Perhaps there are no more grounds for that fear than in the other case. However, if you will send a stamped self-addressed envelope, information regarding tuberculosis will be mailed to you. My advice, however, is to consult a competent physician, who will explain away your fears.

All inquiries addressed to Dr. Huber in care of the "Health Talks" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a per that the scarlet fever a year ago hassonal or quicker reply is desired, a

OHIO FIRE RECORD SHOWS IMPROVEMENT DURING APRIL

A decided improvement in the fire record of Ohio for April as compared with the same month in 1920 is reported by State Fire Marshal H. A. Dykeman, whose report for that month shows there were 302 fires with a loss of $616,956 as against 374 fires and $904,795 loss in April 1920.

The figures for May show that there was one less death but an increase of four in the number of persons injured. Carelessness was responsible for 97 percent of the casualties the fire marshal declares.

The record for the past three years shows that for the first five months the death record is lower in 1921. Total deaths for the first five months of the three years are as follows: For 1921, 126; 1920, 154; 1919, 128.

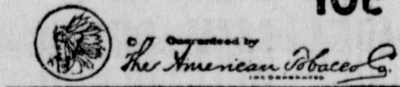

Deaths and injuries during the first five months this year are recorded as follows: January 31 dead, 57 injured; February 31 dead, 49 injured; March 17 dead, 38 injured; April 27 dead, 62 injured. May, 20 dead, 34 injured.

Cause of May deaths are given as follows: Electric wires, 4; airplane fire, 1; playing with fire, 1; natural gas explosion, 1; dynamite, 1; open fire, 1; lantern explosion, 1; lamp explosion, 2; lightning, 4; falling on hot stove, 1; oil stove explosion, 1; bonfire, 1. Causes of May injuries were: Open fires, exploding stove polish, rescuing persons from burning building, dynamite, gasoline, electric wires and fighting fires.

terback and the murder victim were in the house when the attack occurred. They were Mrs. J. A. Brickel, Kaber's mother-in-law; Marian McGinness, his stepdaughter and her chum Anna Baehr. All three were questioned by police in their investigation of the affair, but not one could throw any light on the case.

Mrs. Kaber, with her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. H. J.

McGinness had motored to Cedar Point two days before the killing, and Mrs. Kaber, during the police investigation, maintained repeatedly she knew nothing of the crime until a wire from her daughter reached her.

She told the police she returned to the city the day after the attack, but did not reach home until after her husband's death.

Specialists Find Poison
Almost immediately after Kaber's

death his internal organs were examined by specialists, and it was found his stomach contained enough arsenic to cause death. Before being removed to his home a helpless invalid, Kaber had been treated in two city hospitals, but the investigation revealed he had been given arsenic in either of them.

Police went to work on the theory the poison was given to him in his food while he was being cared for at home, but their investigation along this line brought them nothing.

The bloody, home-made dagger found by the murder victim's bedside and a stained cotton glove were the only clues found in the murder room. Neither could he traced to their owners by authorities and within a few weeks the hue and cry of the murder died away and police gave up their efforts, but always the other agencies were at work.

Who Stabbed Wealthy Publisher to Death? Wife Under Indictment

Cleveland—For the first time since the hunched body of Dan Kaber, wealthy well known publisher, helpless invalid, was found in the bedroom of his home in Lakewood, a suburb on July 18, 1919, it appears the state will demand some one to pay the penalty for the crime.

For nearly two years the father of Kaber and his attorneys and private detectives agencies have sought out the murderer, sometimes reaching forth blindly and at other times working on well-founded clues, but always at work, slowly and carefully running down every angle of the sensational murder case.

Months Bring Clues.
Scarcely a month passed without someone of the dozens at work reporting new developments to the representatives of the Kaber family.

Thus the chain of evidence was strengthened as the weeks and months passed. Great gaps in the trend of developments that for a time threatened to preclude all possibility of fixing guilt on anyone, were gradually bridged. The evidence began to take the shape of a tangible story, each event leading up to the next and finally, after twenty-three months of investigation, the Kaber murder case was brought before the grand jury.

Now Mrs. Kaber, the murdered man's wife, has been indicted on the charge of slaying him. Detectives, who had shadowed her almost constantly since the day of the murder, trailed her to New York, but lost track of her recently. Officials of many cities have been asked to watch for her.

Kaber had been a helpless invalid confined to his bed for three months before the murder. He was being cared for by F. W. Utterback, a male nurse, who was attracted to the invalid's bedroom by cries and moans the night of the killing.

There he found the helpless man on the floor beside his bed with more than a score of knife wounds in his abdomen.

"The man with the cap on did it, Mrs. Kaber had this done," the male nurse said Kaber whispered before he lapsed into unconsciousness.

Dies With Secret.

The following day, July 19, Kaber died in Lakewood hospital, with his lips sealed on the story behind the crime.

FINANCIAL DRIVE FOR ANTIOCH GETS $5,000 AS START

George Little, manufacturer and banker, and member of the Board of Trustees of Antioch College, is the first subscriber to Xenia's part of the fund being raised in the Miami Valley, for the Yellow Springs school.

Mr. Little has donated $5,000, a substantial step toward the goal for which the campaign workers in this city, under General Chairman, Mrs. C. H. Little, are working. Besides the cash donation, it is announced that Mr. Little has also purchased some land near the College buildings for the use of the college.

This particular property it is thought will be used for the erection of a water works system and the establishment of a dairy farm which will come in as part of the practical features of education under the Antioch plan. The water supply is badly needed in order to furnish modern comforts for the dormitories that are to be renovated for students. Heretofore no such facilities have been available.

Mr. Little's generosity in favor of Antioch is an excellent and enthusiastic producing start for the campaign here. Already, another large donation, amounting to $1,000, has been reported, the donor's name being withheld for a time. Solicitors in the local campaign have been supplied with their list of names of people on whom to call and will do so quietly during this week of the drive.

There will be no pyrotechnics connected with the campaign to supply Antioch with funds. People interested in education here as well as elsewhere, are thoroughly informed on the Antioch plan, which combines the theoretical with the practical and they are endorsing the system personally. Where the financial drive has been projected so far, these endorsements have been made substantial by liberal money donations, and this system is expected to prevail here.

As has been announced from time to time some of the best educators are being retained on the new Antioch faculty. Some of these professors and instructors in modern education are shown in the accompanying pictures, but the faculty is already too large to be shown in a picture display so small. The faculty is still being added to also.

Six hundred prospective students are clamoring for admission to the College next fall, it is said, while it is believed that only a third of them can be accepted, until the generosity of supporters of the plan has made increased facilities possible.

new tricks. Business men are as there is no salvation or sale, but insurance.

railroad man who escaped from flood, told me the story of the men filled with passengers with up in the yards for the signal to long. Railroad men were heroes, like the captains on the stricken liners, not leaving their ships till the last passengers were out. Conductor Cal Groves of Denver & Grande train No. 5, and a cold pullman porter, carried arm is of children to higher ground, are others were waiting to move to safety. They both returned more.

Four trips they made at an hour, they went back for two women. A floating log struck lives in the head and both men were killed down and drowned. Their bodies were found later.

In a few minutes, the force of the flood had overturned both the trains, a Denver & Rio Grande and the Missouri Pacific, on to their sides. There were many passengers in them and apparently the majority are lost. Now the railroad yards are six feet deep in mud, with four feet of water on them and it will be a week before any one knows the extent of the casualties there.

When the lumber yard fire started, witnessed one of the finest incidents in my life. Two high school boys seized a boat from a lake north of the yard. When they learned that their father, Francis King, son of the owner of the yard, was in danger, they rescued the boy and father. Geo. King, Illinois, and went back for two more trips, with the flaming timbers floating around them and every minute threatening to inundate them.

Dr. Herbert Gary, prominent physician, stripped to his underwear, took boat to rescue his son, Robert 10 years old, who was trapped in his mother's office on the second floor of office building. He got the youngster into a boat and a huge tree struck the boat, capsizing it. His body was found around the block Saturday morning.

A two-story frame house, was being robbed its way down the river. It crashed into a department store and the woman was thrown into the flood.

qewbackuf' sJaiuecmorewhrdlu atlat

Night Captain Jack Sinclair, of the police department told me that a crew of four men in boats, took 18 families out of the windows of their homes, on the west side of the town. A mother, the captain said, had her babe clasped in her arms when the youngsters, frightened by the events, gave a lurch and pitched out into the black waters. With a moan, the woman threw herself in after the child.

Pueblo men, Sunday morning, told me that they were positive that scores of drowned will never be found and where entire families in the "bottoms" were wiped out, no one will ever know whether they are dead or alive.

The river carrying its mass of wreckage for 100 miles into Kansas must have deposited in the yellow mud many bodies that some farmer may plow up next spring when planting his crops. The people in the bottoms living in small shacks and other squatters in tents, refused to heed the early warning. When they tried to get out with their belongings, it was too late. One aged gypsy woman, carrying a mantel clock, was seen to slip back into the stream as she was trying to get out with her burden. Apparently, time meant a lot for her.

As we stood watching the streams all night Friday, the only sounds were the shouts from the rescuers, here and there a groan from those being carried to the first aid stations. When the fires burned low it was pitch dark and the rescuers were almost helpless.

With the light plant destroyed and candles impossible to secure the city was in total darkness and the dumb-founded citizens maintained silent watches, fearing for the unmerciful daylight that would reveal the extent of their sufferings and loss.

I heard of a railroad brakeman who escaped by riding the hurricane deck of a freight car. The car rolled and tossed like a bronco, but the brakeman held on where others would be torn loose.

Pueblo people must be praised for their bravery and ability to organize. In less than an hour after the flood was at its worst, the town was patrolled by American Legion volunteers, police and citizens.

The ghoulies began their dastardly work in the darkness and one Mexican was shot dead as he swam out of a jewelry store, which he had attempted to loot.

CEARVILLE COLLEGE WILL CELEBRATE CEDAR DAY ON CAMPUS WEDNESDAY WITH ELABORATE PROGRAM OF EVENTS

The celebration of Cedar Day, annually one of the biggest events in the college year at Cedarville College, will be held Wednesday, June 8.

Then the campus of old Cedarville will be converted into an Indian camp, and in pageant the progress of the country from the Indian days to the present day town with its interests and advantages will be presented.

The first of the series of actual closing exercises of the school begins Monday, June 6, with the final faculty meeting at nine o'clock in the morning, and the presentation of the Senior class play Monday evening at eight o'clock.

Tuesday, the faculty reception, an annual feature of the College exercises, will be held at 7:30 o'clock in the evening. The Cedar Day exercises, promising to be bigger and better than ever, will begin at nine o'clock, Wednesday morning, standing at the front of the campus, and the high school orchestra will assist in the entertainment.

The opening Cedar Day episode will be "The Spirit of Indian Days," by Miss Helen Bradfute, in which the children are gathering for The Corn Dance, an Indian ceremonial, when the last of the harvest is brought as a sacrifice to the Great Spirit for the rain and the sunshine which have made the harvest plentiful and which have given much food for the tribe.

The episode closes with the arrival of another tribe, the passing of peace pipes, and the exit of Indian tribes led by the Spirit of the Indian Days.

The second episode is "The Spirit of the Wilderness," by Miss Florence Smith, in which the Spirit of the Wilderness speaks. Groups used to carry out the idea of this episode of the pageant are the daisies, the wild roses, the butterflies, the grass hoppers, the trees, the three nymphs, the mist maidens and the pioneer group.

"The Spirit of Patriotism" is exemplified in the third episode by Miss Florence Smith, assisted by the following persons and groups: "The Spirit of State (Ohio), Miss Alice McKibben; "The Little Town Spirit (Cedarville yesterday)" by Miss Edna Griffith; "The Little Town Interests," Rural, Town, School and Church; "The Grown Town Spirit" (Cedarville today), by Miss Josephine Randall. Community Spirit, Child Welfare, Play, Christianity, Music, Drama, Spirit of Scandal, W. C. T. U., Women Suffrage Red Cross, Education (College and High School).

Cedarville College interests, will close the Cedar Day celebration. The program will be the crowning of the May Queen, Miss Helen Stewart; the May Pole Dance; the Cedar Day are under strict orders to permit no unauthorized persons on the streets and very few aside from active rescue workers are abroad.

The day dawned cloudy, no rain has fallen since last night and optimism prevails. That before nightfall, some approximate estimate of the toll in lives taken by the unprecedented floods may be made.

Thirty-five dead have been identified; 88 bodies are in three morgues and vague estimates of the number of dead range from 150 to 500 and more.

The greatest loss of life occurred in the "Pepper Sauce bottoms" and "The Grove, inhabited mostly by Mexicans and negroes. Whole families were wiped out here and Chief of Police Daley says it is almost certain that hundreds of small children in this district have been victims of the roaring waters that covered Pueblo to a maximum of nine feet.

The greatest problem facing the stricken city is to prevent disease and epidemic. There are small supplies of food on hand, but no gasoline and much of the city is inaccessible because of the piled up debris, transportation and distribution of rations being next to impossible.

Soup kitchens have been opened and bacon, bread and coffee are being served to several thousand refugees.

Disease is reported to have broken out on a large scale in some quarters. The city water works are entirely wiped out, leaving the sewage system clogged and glutted with filth and refuse.

Many red cross nurses and doctors have arrived here from Denver and are making heroic efforts to check the spread of diphtheria and epidemics that threaten the populace.

The grim calm of today was in striking contrast to the wild excitement that prevailed throughout all

CADETS ARE HANDED DECISIVE DEFEAT

The O. S. & S. O. Home Cadets baseball team was handed the worst wallop of the season, on the Home diamond Saturday afternoon by the Walkers of Dayton, formerly the Red, White and Blues, who piled up a 20-3 score on the Cadets.

Vaughn, hurling for the Dayton outfit, never seemed to be sufficiently satisfied with the enormous lead piled up by his teammates to take a chance of loosening up on his delivery a little and as a result, despite the large score, he kept working hard the entire pastime, letting the Cadets down with seven measly hits.

The visitors on the other hand, were at bat 50 times and garnered 14 hits, taking advantage also of 13 errors made by the Cadets. From the amount of poor baseball crowded into one afternoon it appears as if the Home boys were attempting to rid themselves of all the bad playing in their system at one time.

AUTO CLUB BANQUET WILL BE STAGED TUESDAY EVENING

Two hundred members of the Greene County Automobile Club and their wives are expected to attend the regular meeting and banquet to be given by members from Bowersville Community, Tuesday evening at seven o'clock, standard time.

The banquet will be held in the Jefferson Township Centralized school, and will be served by women of the Community Welfare Association. The meeting is being made a community affair at Bowersville, with the wives of all club members invited with their husbands. One hundred people are expected from Bowersville, and from 75 to 100 members are expected to gather at the Chamber of Commerce here Tuesday evening at 6:30 o'clock, daylight saving time, to make the trip in a body.

Elaborate plans are being laid to make the Bowersville meeting and banquet one of the biggest of the booster affairs held. The Masonic Glee Club of this city, will accompany the local delegation and will give a program of song numbers as a feature of the after-banquet entertainment.

Dr. A. C. Messenger, president of the Club has arranged for several speakers, among them Supt. H. C. Aultman, of the County Schools, who is an enthusiastic auto club member. The committee of the Fayette County Automobile Club on the joint auto club picnic, being proposed between the Greene and Fayette County clubs, will be present at the Bowersville meeting, and will meet with the committee of the local club in a furtherance of plans for the picnic.

Members are requested to telephone reservations to the auto club headquarters in the Chamber of Commerce, before Tuesday evening.

FORMER XENIAN CALLED BY DEATH

Word has been received of the death of Miss Anna M. Farber, aged 60, formerly of this city, now of Dayton, who passed away at the home of her brother, Dr. James A. Farber, at 28 North Perry Street, Dayton, on Saturday morning. Death was caused by a cerebral hemorrhage.

Miss Farber was well known in this city having made her home here all of her life until the past year. She is the daughter of the late Benjamin F. and Mary C. Farber. She is survived by one sister and one brother, Mrs. W. T. Wolf, of Pittsburg and Dr. Farber of Dayton.

Burial will be made in this city at the Woodland cemetery, at one o'clock Tuesday. A short service will be held at the Woodland cemetery.

"POLLY" HAS FLING, SETTLES DOWN

"Polly" has had her "fling," and is satisfied once more, to sit calmly in her cage at the In-tur-ban Restaurant. But before her capture "Polly" had seen quite a bit of the world, the scene of her undoing being on the O. S. & S. O. Home grounds. "Polly," it should be explained, is a parrot which escaped from its cage several days ago and successfully eluded pursuers.

According to the Home Weekly, the bird had been seen by a number of persons near the Home, but "Polly" eluded her pursuers, until she resorted to her old domestic trick, of alighting on a wagon, where an employee of the printing department of the Home captured her, and returned her to her mistress, Mrs. O. M. Lees, of this city.

PRE-WAR SPENDING OF AMERICAN WOMEN IN PARIS OUTDONE

Washington.—American women of fashion, leaders of the world as lavish spenders for personal adornment have surpassed their pre war record as heavy buyers of Paris gowns and millinery.

Their purchases at French shops reached the unprecedented total of $10,216,000 last year. This figure represents money spent for gowns and millinery imported to the United States from France.

Consul Trasker reported to the Commerce Department that the amount spent in 1920 exceeded by more than $6,000,000 the figure shown for the preceding year.

DISCRIMINATION IS CHARGED BY MILK PRODUCERS AT MEET

Milk producers charged they are unjustly discriminated against in the price paid them, and urged more equity in the price arrangement, at the organization meeting held at the Y. M. C. A. in Dayton Saturday and attended by more than 400 delegates representing 5,500 producers. Counties represented in the meeting included Greene, Clark, Warren, Preble, Darke, Miami, Shelby, Champaign Logan and Montgomery. County Agent Ford S. Prince of this city was in attendance at the session at which time tentative arrangements for organization were effected.

Producers of whole milk as well as cream were present at the meeting which was presided over by J. Mason Prugh, president of the Montgomery County Farm Bureau and director of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation. It was made plain at the meeting, that there is to be no effort to increase the price of milk to the consumer but it was charged that many farmers are now selling their milk actually below the cost of production, and they ask for more equity in the prices paid by distributors.

The dairymen went on record at the meeting as against a reduction of the present tariff on vegetable oils, and favored the appointment of a joint congressional committee to investigate the causes of deflation of prices of agricultural products. It was suggested that the milk producers might ultimately find it necessary to take steps to control the distribution as well as the production of milk and its products, as a matter of self-preservation.

Among the speakers were E. D. Wald, dairy market specialist of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, Columbus; D. L. Snyder, president of the Clark county, milk producer's association; H. B. Berning, secretary of the Queen City milk producer's association, Cincinnati; T. A. Snapp, member of the executive committee of the Clark county milk producer's organization; Prof. Oscar Erf, of Ohio State University and Senator Charles H. Brand, of Urbana.

It was decided to ask the farm bureau in each of the counties represented in the meeting to appoint two representatives each, they to meet within a few days, to prepare a constitution and by-laws, to be submitted at a future general meeting.

J. W. ANDERSON OF XENIA PASSES AWAY SATURDAY EVENING

John Wilbur Anderson, prominent farmer and contractor of this city passed away at his home at 416 West Main Street, Saturday evening, at 10 o'clock, following a lingering illness of heart trouble and a complication of diseases.

Mr. Anderson had been in failing health for the past two years and his condition had grown worse during the past two weeks. On Saturday, however, he was able to come to the city twice during the day, and a sudden attack of heart trouble was the cause of his death.

Mr. Anderson was born in the Union neighborhood, on May 27, 1853 and had spent the larger part of his life in that vicinity, with the exception of the past 15 years when he lived in this city.

Mr. Anderson was married twice, his first wife, who was before her marriage, Miss Mary Sanders, having passed away, in January 1917. His second marriage to Miss Valeria English took place January 22, 1918.

He is survived by his widow and three sisters and three brothers; Mrs. John Childers, of Albany, Ind.; Mrs. J. R. Stafford, of Albany; Mrs. Byron Adams of Spring Valley, and A. E. Anderson and Horace Anderson of the Union neighborhood and Harvey Anderson of this city.

The deceased was a member of the First Methodist Church. Funeral services will be held from the church at 11 o'clock, new time, Tuesday morning, and burial will be made at Woodland cemetery. Friends may call after 5 o'clock Monday evening.

SIXTH GAME WON BY SOUTH SIDE ATHLETICS SUNDAY

The South Side Athletics won their sixth game of the season, Sunday afternoon, by defeating the Meteors at the Cincinnati avenue lot, 10 to 8, in a game with a sensational finish.

Due to a crippled lineup the Athletics fought an uphill battle all of the way, and they went into the final stanza with the score standing 8 to 5 against them. A batting rally that netted five runs in the final frame, however, iced the game for them.

The South Side Club also defeated the A. B. C. nine Saturday. Regan pitching both games for his team. Next Sunday the Athletics will play Osborn at that place.

HOME BREWS WIN 20-13 VICTORY OVER A. B. C. NINE

In a slug fest, Sunday afternoon, Manager Roy Bayliff's proteges, the Home Brews, redeemed themselves by defeating the A. B. C. nine of the East End 20-13.

The club with the alphabetical name changed batteries no less than three times, in an effort to stop the slugging of the no-percent outfit, but to no avail. Downs and Houk of the Brews cavorted in the best of style about the shortfield and the keystone sack, while the playing of "Stonewall" Cunningham, was the shining light of the A. B. C. program.

The lineup: Home Brews—Owens 1b; Downs 2b; Joe Ary, 3b; Houk, ss; Harbin, rf; Jess Ary, cf; Skelly, lf; Gebhart, p; Jesse Ary, p; Mangum c; A. B. C.'s—Cunningham, 1b; Dickinson 2b; Ewing 3b; E. Glass, ss; Dickie, rf; Estridge, cf; Porter lf; Dickie, Vaughn and Henderson. The score:

FOUR NEW FEATURES ADDED TO COLUMNS OF PAPER TODAY

Four new features have been added to the list of those now appearing in the Gazette and Republican, and will make their initial bow to readers of these papers today.

For the women a series of articles on "Efficient Housekeeping" by Laura A. Kirkman, well-known writer on this subject, and style suggestions by "Lenore," are calculated to appeal to the fancy of every feminine reader.

George Matthews Adams, whose pithy essays, and heart-to-heart talks have established themselves with the readers of many metropolitan newspapers, will contribute a daily talk to readers of the Gazette and Republican. The homely truths and forceful thoughts contained in Mr. Adams' articles will have an instant appeal to those unfamiliar with them.

What is more important than health? And yet how many fail to guard it as they should. Dr. Jones B. Huber, syndicate writer, will offer suggestions and aids in the preservation of your health, which should be carefully read.

The above is an array of features which the Gazette and Republican announce with pardonable pride to their readers. They represent the effort of some of the best special writers in the country, each an expert in his particular line.

SPRINGFIELD BOY DROWNS IN CREEK

Springfield, June 6.—George Gnaul, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gnaul, of 721 West High Street, Springfield, was drowned about 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon in Beaver Creek, near Redmond's Mill, east of Springfield.

The Gnaul boy, together with a number of companions, had been on a picnic to the mill and were swimming when the fatality occurred.

The exact circumstances of the drowning were shrouded in doubt, but it is said that Gnaul slipped from the limb of a tree on which he was sitting, into deep water, and was unable to keep himself above the surface of the water. Efforts of his companions to save him proved fruitless.

The young man is a graduate of St. Raphael High School of the 1920 class and since his graduation has been employed at the French and Hecht company in Springfield.

OHIO AUTO TAGS PASS 561,000 MARK

That Ohioans, regardless of the period of reconstruction, are still buying automobiles in large numbers is attested by the fact that already the number of license tags has passed 561,000 or 27,000 more than last year with indications that it will reach or pass the 600,000 mark by December 31. On July 1 the fee drops to half price.

A. G. Snow, state registrar claims Ohio now leads all other states in the number of machines, pointing out that fully 50,000 machines listed as being in New York really belong in New Jersey, and other New York suburbs outside of New York state.

Baby Fussed All the Time

Sykes Comfort Powder Healed Its Skin & Stopped All Fussing

Lawrence, Mass. — "My oldest child was badly chafed, fussed all the time, and the only way I could do anything with him was to keep soft cloths next to his skin. I tried several powders but nothing helped him until I heard of Sykes Comfort Powder. I cannot recommend it too highly because it has healed the skin affections of my children after everything else had failed, and stopped all fussing." — Mrs. E. L. Green, Lawrence, Mass.

The reason Sykes Comfort Powder is so successful in such cases is because it contains six healing, antiseptic ingredients not found in ordinary talcums. For twenty years it has been used and endorsed by physicians and mothers, and nurses call it "A Healing Wonder."

LOOK YOUNGER

Care-worn, nerve-exhausted women need Bito-Phosphate, a pure organic phosphate dispensed by Sayre & Hemphill that New York and Paris physicians prescribe to increase weight and strength and to revive youthful looks and feelings.

Efficient Housekeeping

BY Laura A. Kirkman

Remove the Bones, your knife. Slip one time of a two-

Many persons prefer the shad to any other kind of fish, but shun it because of its treacherous bones. All housewives, then, should learn to remove the bones. It is easy to do.

Have your fishman deliver the shad to you in the ordinary way—scald, cleaned, with head and tail cut off. Place it upon clean wrapping paper and with a slender-bladed knife split the fish all the way along the side of it which has been partly opened by the fishman when cleaned—the under part. Then, as though you were opening a book, take the top side of the fish with the left hand and, holding the knife in your right hand, cut the flesh away close to the bones till the back of the shad is reached; in this way, the fish will lie flat, opened, its back representing the book's binding and its two sides the leaves of an open book.

Now begin at the neck and separate the backbone from the flesh of the lower side. Free the backbone of all flesh and remove it gently so that the innumerable small bones which are attached to it, will also come away. Next make three shallow cuts, equal distances apart, on each of the two halves of the opened fish. These cuts should run the entire length of each half, and in making them take care not to press hard on the knife, for the object is merely to open the fish down to the row of bones but not to go through the bones.

The next step is to locate the bones in one of the slits with the tip of

FARMER TELLS OF WIFE'S RECOVERY

Mrs. Hoover After Taking Tanlac In Better Health Than In Ten Years.

"Tanlac has made a stronger, healthier woman of my wife and she is in better health now than she has been in ten years," said Sam Hoover, well known farmer living on R. P. D. No. 10, Mogadore, Ohio, while at the Day Drug Co., in Akron.

"For over three years my wife suffered from loss of appetite and stomach trouble and everything she ate made her miserable. She complained of being dizzy headed and of having black spots before her eyes and would become very faint and weak. She was in constant agony with pains in her back and chest, and was so nervous and restless that many a night she scarcely got a wink of sleep.

"We saw Tanlac so highly spoken of that my wife began taking it and four bottles of the medicine have put her in the best of health. She has a splendid appetite now and sleeps like a child all night. Tanlac has rid her of all her troubles and made her happy and energetic, and we are only too glad to tell our neighbors and friends and any one else about Tanlac."

Tanlac is sold in Xenia by Sayre & Hemphill and leading druggists.

Coffee Strawberry Shortcake
Stuffing for Baked Boned Shad
Mix together two cups soft bread-crumbs, one-fourth cup melted butter, one-half teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon pepper, one-fourth teaspoon onion salt or one-half onion finely minced, 1 teaspoon minced parsley, one-half cup chopped celery (may be left out) and only just enough hot water to moisten. Stuff the fish with this forcemeat, sew up with needle and white thread. Place the fish in an enamelware pan, pour in a little water, add a lump of butter, dust the top of the fish with salt, pepper and buttered crumbs, and bake in a moderate oven until the fish is tender and the crumbs are brown.

The Revolt of Vera Sanderson

By JANE PHELPS.

DEATH SILENCES RETROACHES Chapter 60

"What in the—Vera, stop that crying this instant! You will make yourself ill!" Even in my anger I noted the anxiety in Keith's voice. He leaned over the bed and raised me in his arms. "You—you have been crying this way all night?"

"Yes, I couldn't help it."

"Why didn't you tell me you were going ashore?"

"Margaret sent me, and told me to hurry." She did it purposely because she—"I started to say "wanted to you to be with Mrs. De Lisle," but changed it to "didn't want me to go."

"Margaret thought as I did that you were on the yacht."

I started to tell him of what Irene had said—that her mother had declared I would not go. Then I hesitated. Margaret had doubtless given him her version. I would wait. But he should know, as well as the others, how she had managed to keep me at home.

"She felt very badly that you had missed your good time. We were miles from shore when we discovered you weren't in the party. I was so busy sailing the boat, and Margaret so busy entertaining our guest that your absence wasn't noticed until we had been gone a long time. Margaret nearly wept when she found that her sending you for her sweater had made you miss your treat. It spoiled her evening."

"That was her attitude! She had pretended to be sorry after telling Mrs. De Lisle that she would keep me at home. Once again I made a resolve to "get even" no matter what the cost to myself.

I allowed myself to be pacified and finally fell asleep. But I awoke before Keith and smarting eyes drove me to a mirror. I was a sight. My eyes were red and swollen, my cheeks puffed. I ran to bathroom and for half an hour, until Keith awakened, I bathed my face and eyes in cold water. When he awoke I still showed I had been crying but was not as horribly disfigured as I had been earlier.

I wanted to remain in my room but Keith insisted that I go down to breakfast with him. So I put on my hat. It would hide my red eyes, and also I would be ready to go to the station with him.

"It was too bad you missed the party," Mrs. Green said when we went into the dining room. "We had a lovely time. I don't see yet how we came to get off without you."

"I am sorry I sent you for my sweater, Vera," Margaret said in her cold voice; but I saw the look in her eyes and it said perfectly plainly, "I intended to keep you at home."

"I shall not be so willing to run your errands hereafter," I replied. "I would not have left the boat had I not been sure you would have told Keith you had asked me to go get something for you. I ran all the way up here and all the way back so would have kept you waiting but a few moments. I shall, as I said, be less obliging hereafter."

It was a long speech for me and one that offended Keith. I could see by the way he compressed his lips.

"I told you I was very sorry I asked you to get my sweater. Don't be childish, Vera," Margaret replied. As we walked to the station, Keith said:

"I am very sorry you were disappointed last night, Vera. But your disappointment does not excuse your rudeness to Margaret this morning. She felt very badly and excused herself before them all."

"She didn't tell you she had sent me until you were too far out to come back, did she?" I asked, still so indignant I was not afraid to answer back.

"No—but she didn't miss you. She thought you were on board until she felt chilly, and looked for you to ask where she could find her sweater."

"Very ingenious," I couldn't help the sneer.

"Vera! Margaret is my sister," Keith rebuked, then did not speak again until his train drew into the station.

"Goodbye. And Vera, try and think more kindly of people. Give them credit for being honest, at least."

Honest! Why Margaret never had been honest with me. She had done everything she could to hurt me, and now she was trying to undermine me with Keith through Mrs. De Lisle. My thoughts were very bitter as I walked back through the shaded country streets alone. I would not see Keith until Friday. He was displeased with me and I would have to put up with Margaret's sneers and taunts all alone. But once more I was planning, thinking what would happen, forgetting that I had nothing to do with it—that a higher Power had me in His keeping.

"Here's a telegram, Vera," Gloria came to meet me.

My heart almost stood still as I tore it open. Through eyes blinded with tears I read:

"Father died this morning. Funeral Sunday, Sallie."

I ran to the telephone and left word with Keith's stenographer to have him call me as soon as he came in. Then without speaking to Margaret or anyone I packed my trunk once more. Again nothing seemed to matter, everything was so small when real trouble came.
